About the service

This service has been registered since April 2002.

The service is registered to provide:

To provide a care service to a maximum of 20 children aged from three years to those not yet attending primary school.
Any other conditions unique to the service:
The care service will operate Monday to Friday during school term.
Staffing ratios as stated in the National Care Standards - Early Education and Childcare up to the age of 16 must be maintained at all times. A minimum of two adults must be present at all times.

The service is provided in a classroom within the primary school. Children also had access to adjacent outside play areas, which had been developed with improved resources. This outside resource could not be accessed within a 'free flow' context with the children able to decide when to leave the classroom. Staffing levels met recommended ratios.

The Care Inspectorate is committed to improving the health and wellbeing of all children receiving a care service. We want to ensure they have the best start in life, are ready to succeed and live longer, healthier lives.

We check services are meeting the principles of Getting it right for every child (also known as GIRFEC). Set up by Scottish Government, GIRFEC is a national approach to working in a consistent way with all children and young people. It is underpinned by the principles of prevention and early intervention. The approach helps services focus on what makes a positive difference for children and young people - and what they can do to improve. Getting it right for every child is being woven into all policy, practice, strategy and legislation that affect children, young people and their families.

There are eight wellbeing indicators at the heart of Getting it right for every child. They are: safe; healthy; achieving; nurtured; active; respected; responsible; and included. They are often referred to as the SHANARRI indicators. We use these indicators at inspection, to assess how services are making a positive difference for children.

What people told us

We sent 11 Care Standards Questionnaires to parents of children who attended the service. We received three completed questionnaires before the inspection took place. These indicated that these parents were very satisfied with the quality of care provided. Comments shared through the returned questionnaires and speaking with the inspector during the inspection process included some of the following: 'The nursery staff are very welcoming ..it is a great nursery.' Another wrote '..fantastic staff and resources.I feel my child is very content and happy in their environement.'

Self assessment

The service had not been asked to complete a self assessment in advance of the inspection. We sought information linked to their own improvement plan and quality assurance paperwork. These helped us assess the priorities for development and how the service was monitoring the quality of the provision within the service.

From this inspection we graded this service as:

Quality of care and support	5 - Very Good
Quality of environment	5 - Very Good
Quality of staffing	not assessed
Quality of management and leadership	not assessed

What the service does well

Children were well cared for by three early year practitioners, who knew them all very well. The staff's experience ensured measured interactions with the children and they promoted a real ethos of respect in their interactions with the children and their parents/carers. Children enjoyed a fun place to play and learn. We noted children had opportunties to develop an interest in growing fruit and vegtables in the nursery garden. Those spoken with clearly experienced a sense of achievement linked to tending to the plants.

Staff had undertaken training in child protection and safeguarding and we understood more is planned in the coming term. We were satisfied staff had a strong understanding of their roles and responsibilities in the event of them having concerns linked to children's safety, health and wellbeing.

Learning journeys were sampled and noted that this area of practice had been an area of review. Information held is open to parental review and staff are keen to further develop the sharing of the children's achievements with parents/carers through this document and the achievement wall. Records held linked to the children's progress are now less descriptive and are becoming more outcome based linked to learning achieved and next steps identified. Mind maps also assisted staff in supporting children in helping to shape their learning.

Children have regular access to active play and staff are keen to maximise the use of the outdoor resources. Staff took time to seek children's views to support and promote imaginative play linked to outdoor activities, where opportunties to play with water and sand were in place.

The use of dedicated outside play continues to be fully embedded and staff have been proactive in supporting children's access to these resources. Staff continue to review the use of 'loose parts' - the provision of open-ended resources to support creativity, problem solving and collaboration and decision-making to support imaginative play and we noted planned further development linked to refreshing extensive resources already in place.

Staff planning for transitional arrangements between the service and the primary early level class was ongoing and appeared to take into account the needs of the children.

Staff provided children with reassurance by giving cuddles, space and time for the children to express their wishes, thus leading to the children feeling nurtured and valued. Children throughout the service had opportunities to engage in a varied and stimulating environment.

What the service could do better

We discussed with staff how accidents and incidents were recorded and signposted the Highland Council proforma provided for this task, to them. We would encourage the manager of the service to audit these reports. This qualitative review of records will assist identifying any action points required. We identified that the décor could be altered to further increase the children's overall experience. Staff recognised where changes could be made and it is hoped incremental changes will be implemented as resources become available.

Staff are aware of how to make further improvements to support children's play and learning. We discussed the review of books availble in the book corner. We agreed that the range of books should reflect current areas of interest. Additionally staff were asked to ensure the reading material promotes an understanding of cultural diversity and the children's place in the world.
